Retail Prices Index

The Retail Prices Index ('Index') for the quarter ended 30 June 2026 has now been completed.

The Index has increased by 3.4% to 130.652. The change in the Index over the year to 30 June 2026 has been 4.4%.

Date	Index	Quarterly % Increase/ Decrease	Annual % Increase/ Decrease
30.06.2025	125.181	0.1%	0.3%
30.09.2025	126.349	0.9%	2.7%
31.12.2025	126.626	0.2%	2.1%
31.03.2026	126.379	-0.2%	1.1%
30.06.2026	130.652	3.4%	4.4%

Quarterly change: The latest Middle Eastern crisis and consequent closure of the Strait of Hormuz had an inevitable impact on the Index this quarter, with kerosene and diesel prices escalating. This had a large upwards impact on the transport and fuel and power categories. Outside those categories, there were increases across the board, albeit relatively contained at 0.1% or less. Only the household goods and services category recorded a drop in the quarter (-0.1%).

Annual change: Further drops in fuel witnessed in the first quarter of 2026 kept annual inflation low, with the fuel and power category representing the biggest deflationary contributor over the 12-month period. Food and non-alcoholic beverages were the biggest contributor to inflation over the year, likely reflecting the relatively high inflation rates in the United Kingdom in 2025. Housing was an important driver of inflation in the year, largely due to the increase in Falkland Islands Government rents introduced in 2025.

Outlook and conclusions: While oil prices are relatively more settled than they were at the end of quarter 1, there is still a lot of uncertainty and fresh strikes on Iran have seen oil prices creep up again, reaching $95 per barrel towards the end of July. Kerosene and diesel prices in the Falkland Islands fell slightly at the start of July. If the trend continues, it will have an important deflationary impact on the quarter 3 Index figure. However, the quarter 3 figure will also incorporate increases approved in the 2026-2027 budget (Government rents and service charge, for instance), and drops in the price of fuel, if they materialise, are likely to be dulled by these increases.

The annual change in the Index excluding fuel and power remains relatively low at 1.7%. This is largely due to drops in the price of internet over the last twelve months. Food has been a relatively large contributor to inflation over the last twelve months, and that is likely to continue, notwithstanding the recent short-term inflation drop in the United Kingdom.

Dated 29 July 2026

R. CORDEIRO,
for Director, Policy, Economy and Corporate Services.

Erratum

Gazette No 11 published on 30 April 2026 - notice number 50 Retail Prices Index in the second paragraph and in the table contained "123.379" as the Index for 31 March 2026 in error, the correct Index for 31 March 2026 was 126.379 as reflected in notice number 82 above.
